

Managed Learning Services

Training is not a cost but an investment that helps ensure the future of your company. A part of maximizing the return on this investment is to know when you can take on the training yourself and when to seek outside expertise. If your department lacks the time and resources for learning administration then managed services is for you. In fact, in many cases, outside support can save you money. With ePath Learning's Managed Learning Services you can focus on your core learning and development activities while we focus on managing your LMS!

"It gives us great peace of mind to know that we can rely on ePath's team to perform those administrative tasks that often we don't have the time to complete on our own. It's a real win-win situation for us."

Ensure Continuity

Relying on managed learning services enables you to relinquish responsibility for maintenance, troubleshooting, reporting, general QA and even course production to the experts at ePath who work in the system every day. This ensures continuity of the workflow and consistent results.

Greater Flexibility

Many companies need extra resources at certain times of the year to effectively manage business realities like employee turnover, seasonality, vacation schedules, new initiatives, and more. Through managed learning services, you can address these short-term requirements exactly when you need it the most.

Reduce Costs

Rather than employing full-time LMS specialists, your team has access to ePath Learning's expertise and unique skill set when you need them. Using managed learning services you can effectively reduce your company's operational expenses.

ePath Learning offers a wide range of Managed Learning Services which can be customized to meet your company's unique learning administration requirements. We will collaborate with you to design an optimal managed learning services package that fits your needs and budget. Are you interested in learning more? Call us today 860-444-8090.
