Training Technology Solutions for Regulated Industries

Deliver, Manage and Track Employee Training for Compliance

Organizations in regulated industries such as pharmaceuticals, medical devices and life sciences have stringent training and compliance requirements. Technology makes it easier than ever before for you to automate and manage your training and compliance initiatives. ePath Learning's learning management technology solutions let you create or import training courses and materials, assign, administer, track and report on all of your training and compliance efforts. Our cloud-based technology is easily accessible via the Internet; so your employees can access their training materials from anywhere, anytime day or night, and from desktop or mobile devices.

Assign Training Based on Employee Needs

Administering training based on employee job type or role ensures that your team receives just the content they need when they need it. Learning paths are easily developed that guide your employees through their development. You can schedule annual training requirements and deliver email alerts to remind employees of upcoming training events and expected due dates. You can even schedule, track and report on blended learning events including instructor-led training, webinars or required reading materials.

Validation to Meet Strict Regulatory Measures

Our learning management technology is content neutral; therefore any type of course type can be easily uploaded and stored for easy access. Our technology is validated and 21 CFR Part 11 compliant and supports electronic signature and version control. A time-stamped audit trail of all changes made to your materials and interactions within the platform is always readily available.

ePath Learning, Inc. is the ideal partner for regulated organizations seeking comprehensive online training and compliance solutions. Our cloud-based learning management technology helps you securely manage your employee training and compliance initiatives from start to finish.

Our technology is backed by unparalleled customer support services. When you have questions, we have answers. If you have problems, we have solutions.
